Elder Abuse - COVID-19 Financial Scams

Fraudsters are offering COVID-19 tests and Medicare prescription cards in exchange for personal details, including Medicare information. These services are unapproved and illegitimate.

These scammers use the coronavirus pandemic to benefit themselves. The personal information collected can be used to fraudulently bill federal health care programs and commit medical identity theft.

Protect Yourself from COVID-19 Scams

- Offers to purchase COVID-19 vaccination cards are scams. Valid proof of COVID-19 vaccination can only be provided to individuals by legitimate providers administering vaccines.
- Photos of COVID-19 vaccination cards should not be shared on social media. Posting content that includes your date of birth, health care details or other personally identifiable information can be used to steal your identity.
- Be vigilant and protect yourself from potential fraud concerning COVID-19 vaccines. You will not be asked for money to enhance your ranking for vaccine eligibility. Government officials will not call you to obtain personal information in order to receive the vaccine.
- Beneficiaries should be cautious of unsolicited requests for their personal, medical, and financial information. Medicare will not call beneficiaries to offer COVID-19 related products, services, or benefit reviews.
- Be suspicious of any unexpected calls or visitors offering COVID-19 tests or supplies. If you receive a suspicious call, hang up immediately.
- Do not respond to or open hyperlinks in text messages about COVID-19 from unknown individuals.
- Ignore offers or advertisements for COVID-19 testing or treatments on social media sites. If you make an appointment for a COVID-19 test online, make sure the location is an official testing site.
- Be aware of scammers pretending to be COVID-19 contact tracers. Legitimate contact tracers will never ask for your Medicare number, financial information, or attempt to set up a COVID-19 test for you and collect payment information for the test. If you suspect COVID-19 health care fraud, report it immediately online at <https://tips.hhs.gov> or call 800-HHS-TIPS (800-447-8477).

Spotting Possible Financial Scams

Predators robbing seniors of their savings has been called “the fastest-growing crime in the country.”

Most seniors never report abuse, even when they know their funds are being taken, because they’re overwhelmed at the idea of involving the police, or fear being forced to go to a nursing home or are ashamed, especially when the abuser is a family member or caregiver. Isolation of the victim by the perpetrator is a strong indicator of undue influence. Often the victim is already living alone and sometimes is removed from contact with outsiders, due either to physical limitations or a psychological fear of leaving the home.

The National Center on Elder Abuse estimates that only one in four cases of financial abuse is reported. Unscrupulous people manipulate older adults into giving their consent for financial transactions, so be aware of:

- $ Sudden changes in a senior’s banking habits, such as frequent withdrawals being made through ATMs, especially if the victim is physically frail and has not previously used an ATM; transfer of funds to new accounts at banks with which the victim has had no prior connection, and frequent transfers of funds among several accounts.
- $ Checks written to unusual recipients or large credit card transactions.
- $ Sudden transfer of assets to a family member or acquaintance without a reasonable explanation.
- $ Complaints of stolen pension or Social Security checks or credit cards.
- $ New signatories added to an elder’s account.
- $ Abrupt changes in a will or other financial documents.

Did You Know?

Complaints about online shopping made to the consumer-protection agency rank first among the nearly 115,000 coronavirus-related fraud reports this year.

Online shopping complaints skyrocketed in April and May, when more than half the people complaining said they never got what they ordered. Early on, shady sellers set up websites offering hard-to-find products such as masks, sanitizer, toilet paper, thermometers and gloves. Sellers blamed the pandemic for shipping delays, then stopped responding to consumers, who in some cases were sent counterfeit or defective items or products not in the size ordered.

Emergency Broadband Benefit

This Federal Communications Commission program helps families and households struggling to afford internet service during the COVID-19 pandemic. Those who are eligible can receive a discount of up to $50 per month towards broadband service for eligible households. Eligible households can also receive a one-time discount of up to $100 to purchase a laptop, desktop computer, or tablet from participating providers if they contribute more than $10 and less than $50 toward the purchase price.

The Emergency Broadband Benefit is limited to one monthly service discount and one device discount per household.

Taking Care of Yourself

Get That Needed Sleep

You can easily become exhausted and depressed if you don't get enough sleep. Not only will you feel overwhelmed, but many physical illnesses have been linked to sleep deprivation.

These include a reduction in natural immunity to infections and diseases, an increased sensitivity to pain, appetite changes and weight gain, and an increased risk of diabetes.

Caregiving demands can easily extend to 24 hours a day in many cases. Plan ahead so that you don't become sleep deprived, because when it occurs, judgment and mood changes can impair your problem-solving abilities. Some things you should do to assure proper rest and down time:

- Plan ahead for adequate relief and support—no one can be a caregiver 24 hours a day.
- Learn to listen to your body; recognize fatigue early and plan to rest. Take breaks as needed.
- Openly express how you are feeling to those who support you.
- Remember that alcohol, excessive caffeine, lack of exercise, and a lack of routine make exhaustion worse.

Memory Care

People with Alzheimer's disease and all other dementia may forget to wash their hands or take other recommended precautions to prevent illness. In addition, diseases like COVID-19 and the flu may worsen cognitive impairment due to dementia.

When to Seek Emergency Medical Attention

Because some of the symptoms of flu and COVID-19 are similar, it may be hard to tell the difference between them based on symptoms alone, and testing may be needed to help confirm a diagnosis. Look for emergency warning signs for COVID-19. If someone is showing any of these signs, seek emergency medical care immediately:

- Trouble breathing
- Persistent pain or pressure in the chest
- New confusion
- Inability to wake or stay awake
- Pale, gray, or blue-colored skin, lips, or nail beds, depending on skin tone.

This list is not all possible symptoms. Please call your medical provider for any other symptoms that are severe or concerning to you.

Call 911 or call ahead to your local emergency facility: notify the operator that you are seeking care for someone who has or may have COVID-19.
